Administrative and Public Law

Naomi is a member of the Attorney General's C Panel of Counsel.

She has assisted in disclosure exercises for high profile and complex judicial review claims, and appeared as junior counsel in OA (Somalia) v Secretary of State for the Home Department [2022] UKUT 00033 (IAC) (country guidance case). She also spent a year as junior counsel to the Undercover Policing Inquiry.

Overlapping with her other areas of practice, Naomi has a particular interest in public law in the education context and in discrimination claims in the public sector.

As a judicial assistant at the Court of Appeal, Naomi worked on a range of public law matters including immigration, asylum, human rights, school transport and the public sector equality duty.

Recommendations

Naomi Webber is adept at representing both respondents and claimants in employment proceedings spanning unfair dismissal, wage disputes and discrimination claims. She has appeared in a Supreme Court appeal concerning holiday pay for part-year workers.

"A fantastic counsel, she is knowledgeable and experienced." "She is a good advocate."
