Commercial

Naomi regularly advises Claimants and Defendants on breach of contract claims in the employment context, including for unpaid bonuses, salary overpayments and overtime. She previously acted as specialist junior counsel in a commercial dispute, providing employment law advice for a complex multi-million pound claim arising out of a share-purchase agreement.

In addition, Naomi advises on contractual claims in the education sector, including in relation to independent schools and out of school clubs, and acts for and against universities in breach of contract and discrimination claims. She is currently instructed for a university, advising on ongoing consumer rights claims brought by students (led by Michael Tomlinson KC).

Naomi has also acted in a wide range of contractual matters in the County Court. She has advised and appeared for small businesses and individuals in claims including unpaid invoices, disputes over quality of work, consumer credit and costs.
