Family

Elaine practises predominantly in financial claims on divorce. She also deals with property claims between unmarried partners and applications involving children for financial support under Schedule 1 Children Act 1989.

Her particular areas of expertise include third party claims, complex trust arrangements, assets located overseas and enforcement of orders.

Elaine routinely advises in areas such as nuptial agreements, trusts of land, insolvency and costs.

Elaine also undertakes private children work. Her cases often involve sensitive matters such as domestic abuse, sexual abuse and removal from the jurisdiction.

Whilst Elaine mostly represents parents, she regularly receives instructions to act on behalf of children through court appointed guardians (Cafcass and NYAS).

Elaine regularly provides lectures in all areas of family finance and she assists her Inn, the Middle Temple, in the education of student barristers.

With a wealth of experience, she is self-assured and calm, but firm in her style of representation.
